The University Library as Publisher

UKSG Webinar 29 October 2014

Janet Aucock
University of St Andrews

What material is being published?

- Journals?
  - Enhanced journals/Alternative journals/Journals with additional resources?
  - Monographs?
  - E-theses?
  - Working papers?
- Or do they all start to merge together?
- Open access environment

Who is the publisher?

- What is our definition of a publisher?
- Is the Library or institution the host or distributor?
- Is the editorial board, or Society or Academic School or Research Institute the publisher?
- Might all these elements become a “publishing collaboration” where roles are not necessarily well defined

Do you need a strategy?

- A strategy?
- A grand plan?
- An experiment?
- An opportunity?
- Measuring success?

Revolution?

- Replacing “traditional” existing journals? Complementary?
- Opportunities for undergrads, postgraduates and academic staff
- Learning opportunities, more knowledge to make more informed choices
- Learning experiences for all concerned
- Fit into set of open access and research support services

Collaborative working

- Build communities around the service across disciplines and researcher groups
- Cooperation and collaborative working across institutions. Scottish Digital Library Consortium
- Shared services and models
- JISC pathfinder and LOCH (Lessons in Open Access Compliance for Higher Education)

<http://openaccess.jiscinvolve.org/wp/pathfinder-projects/>

<http://libraryblogs.is.ed.ac.uk/loch/>

- OJS community and list

PKP OJS site at <https://pkp.sfu.ca/ojs/>

JISC email list is OJS-USERS

Other themes along the way

- Costs and resourcing
- Technical infrastructure and support
- Service levels
- Quality assurance and engagement
- Meeting development demands and expectations
- Content discovery
- Long term archiving and preservation

University of St Andrews Library Journal Hosting Service

Welcome to the University of St Andrews journal hosting service provided by the University Library. This service uses Open Journal Systems to support the publishing process, including submission, peer-review and online publication. The Library will act as 'electronic distributor' for hosted journals.

We can provide demonstrations and training to members of the University wishing to run their own journal. See more information about the service on our library web pages.

Ethnographic Encounters

Ethnographic Encounters was founded in 2011 by Zoe Miller, Emily Sheppard and Dr. Craig Lind. Ethnographic Encounters is an undergraduate e-journal which provides a platform for the work of the Social Anthropology students of the University of St Andrews. The e-journal's main aim is that of publishing research projects conducted by students in their second year of study. Additionally, the publication promotes visual and other experimental expressions of ethnographic interest.

The e-journal is intended to present the work of the University of St Andrews' undergraduate Social Anthropology students for two main audiences. In the first instance, Ethnographic Encounters presents a valuable resource for future students to draw on the experience and insights of their predecessors. In the second instance, Ethnographic Encounters offers a means for Social Anthropology students throughout the world to engage with their peers in St Andrews, establish new connections, share ideas and to begin to engage in an exchange of knowledge that is fundamental to the discipline.

Potential contributors are warmly invited to contact us at encounters@st-andrews.ac.uk.

Theology in Scotland

Theology in Scotland is a journal of theology which is general in scope, but which is rooted in the Scottish theological tradition. Founded in 1994, the journal is published in print format twice a year, in spring and autumn, with the full text of each issue being made available online one year after print publication.

The journal publishes articles and book reviews from authors from across the theological spectrum, and particularly welcomes submissions which focus on aspects of Scottish theology. To date, these have included: studies of the work of prominent Scottish theologians; responses to current issues in the Scottish church and nation; and aspects of Scottish church history.

Planning a journal with OJS

If you are interested in starting a journal with OJS, you should consider what you want the journal to achieve. You will need to consider the journal title, the scope and what role this journal will fulfil in your discipline. Will the journal be peer-reviewed, and what will be the frequency of publication and expected types of content?

OJS is primarily designed to deliver open access content, although full or partial subscription models can be supported.

We would encourage you to look at our OJS setup form (Word, 42 KB) to see the sorts of questions you need to consider and policies you need to establish for your journal. The form provides a detailed list of questions and closely mirrors the information needed to set up the journal in OJS. The Library will use the form as the basis for discussions for a project. The form also provides a useful record of the timeline for your project and records project milestones.

Journal hosting service – the reality

- Technical support
  - ✓ Free, open source software, easy to install, stable
  - × What about upgrades and development?
- User support
  - ✓ Thorough knowledge of OJS easily gained through good documentation and strong user community
  - × TIME required! Support needs vary greatly. Is it a core service?
- Publishing and management
  - ✓ The Journal is responsible for all content, policies and processes
  - × When do activities ‘overlap’? Who does the reader recognise as ‘the publisher’?

Centre for the Study of Terrorism and Political Violence

Supported by University of St Andrews Library Journal Hosting Service

In 2010 the Centre for the Study of Terrorism and Political Violence launched the on-line Journal of Terrorism Research. The aim of this Journal is to provide a space for academics and counter-terrorism professionals to publish work focused on the study of terrorism. Given the interdisciplinary nature of the study of terrorism, high-quality submissions from all academic and professional backgrounds are encouraged. Students are also warmly encouraged to submit work for publication.

Iterative setup process

- Common questions

1. How can I customise the look of the journal?

2. How do I upload content?

3. Are there any costs?

- Hosting: nominal 0.2 FTE, hardware and backup, minimal technical support, CrossRef membership – costs absorbed by Library
- Journals: printing and publicity, web/logo design – costs generally absorbed by Societies or Schools, or met through one-off grants.
- Staff are volunteers or doing as part of existing roles
- Readers: All online content is free. Some journals charge for print versions
- Authors: Submission/Publishing is free, i.e. no Article Processing Charges (APCs)

Iterative setup process

- Other questions
  - Will OJS help with tracking submissions?
  - How will readers find our journal?
  - How do we manage copyright?
  - How do we express our journal policies?
  - How do I get an ISSN?

Services beyond OJS

- Drafting copyright agreements and statements
- Suggesting relevance of Open Access to mission
- Thinking creatively about Open Access models
- Discussing costs and sources of funding
- Sharing experience on processes and workflows
- Promoting discovery
- Preservation and other repository services

DOI Plugin Settings

Please configure the DOI plug-in to be able to manage and use DOIs in OJS:

Journal Content * Please select the publishing objects that will have Digital Object Identifiers (DOI) assigned:

NOTE: When using the CrossRef DOIs, please select articles. Article is seen as work, i.e. entity of intellectual and artistic content. Thus, article is the publishing object the CrossRef DOI export and registration is based upon.

- ☐ Issues
- ☒ Articles
- ☐ Galleys
- ☐ Supplementary Files

DOI Prefix * The DOI Prefix is assigned by registration agencies (e.g. CrossRef) and is in the format 10.xxxx (e.g. 10.1234):

10.15664

Home > User > Journal Manager > Import/Export Data > CrossRef Export/Registration Plugin > Settings

Settings

This plugin can be configured to automatically register Digital Object Identifiers (DOIs) with CrossRef. You will need a username and password (available from CrossRef) in order to do so. If you do not have your own username and password you can still export into the CrossRef XML format, but you cannot register your DOIs with CrossRef from within OJS.

Clearer setup tips

3.2 PERMISSIONS

COPYRIGHT NOTICE

The Copyright Notice will appear in About the Journal. It should describe for readers and authors whether the copyright holder is the author, journal, or a third party. It should include additional licensing agreements (e.g. CREATIVE COMMONS licenses) that grant rights to readers (see EXAMPLES), and it should provide the means for securing permissions, if necessary, for the use of the journal's content.

- Further embedding in our OA services
- Managing technical developments
- Managing user expectations
- Ensuring sustainability of the journals

What's next for our service?

So we are

- Reviewing level of staff resource needed
- Reviewing options for technical support
- Reviewing our hosting model and looking at alternatives...
- Committed to supporting Open Access, and meeting our users' needs

University of St Andrews
